

Genealogical Society of Marion County

Presents: “Unique Aspects of African American Genealogical Research”

This presentation will discuss the unique aspects of African American genealogical research, highlighting slave cases and the Indiana Supreme Court.

1:00 p.m., Saturday, February 12, 2011

Warren Branch, Indianapolis-Marion County Public Library
9701 E. 21st Street (see map Warren Branch Library)

Admission is free

Tamara Winfrey Harris is the President-Elect of IAAGG (Indiana African American Genealogy Group) and has been actively pursuing her interest in genealogy for five years. Tamara is Vice President of communications and marketing at the Eiteljorg Museum of American Indians and Western Art in Indianapolis. In addition to exploring her family's roots, Tamara is a freelance writer and dedicated blogger, writing at her personal blog 'What Tami Said', contributing to Change.org's 'Race in America' site and serving as editor of the blog 'Love Isn't Enough'. Her writing has appeared on the Huffington Post, Newsweek online and on the (London) Guardian's 'Comment is Free' site.

Special

Do you have a photo or document, or news article that you want scanned– but you don't have a scanner or know how to do it? Bring it to this session and there will be an opportunity to have it done. Also bring a blank CD or a thumb-drive that we can put it on.

If you plan to do this, please let us know by sending a note to info@GenealogyIndy.org.

For more information on GSMC and events, go to www.rootsweb.ancestry.com/~ingsmc

This event is not sponsored by the Indianapolis-Marion County Public Library.